Stewardship

Stewardship is how Christians express their commitment and love towards Christ. Commitment is primarily expressed through action. What a person does says more about one's faith than anything else. This is why regular participation in Sunday Worship is indicative of a living faith that seeks to express thanksgiving and praise towards God and how one experiences true membership.

The Worship Connection

The way Orthodox Christians fulfill their membership as the body of Christ is through regular participation in the Liturgy. Each week we are called to come to Church prepared through prayer, fasting and repentance to receive Holy Communion. The liturgy cannot be celebrated without the people of God who make the offering of themselves to Christ through the presbyter. By giving thanks and glory for all of God's blessings we ascend to the heavenly banquet of God's Kingdom and partake of life immortal and become full members of His body, the Church.
